

ONPE remind electors election official tables required for the June 5th elections to be put in alphabetical order

The National Office of Electoral Processes of Peru (ONPE) reminded over 22 million electors their election official tables will be put in alphabetical order and their April 10th polling stations will be the same at the Second Presidential Election to be held on June 5th, 2016.

Political organization made a call to citizens to ratify information on their polling stations and their assigned numbers of election official table, with the aim of preventing crowds at the entrance of those stations on the election day.

Electors will be alphabetically distributed to election official tables as on April 10th, 2016, ONPE noted. Besides, each elector will rely on an order number on his table for his name to be able being found in the electoral roll faster.

Before entering the polling station on the election day, the electors will find the lists of voters per each election official table alphabetically ordered according to the initial of their first names, block, floor and room, where they will have to go to cast their rights to vote.

This modality facilitates voter to locate his election official table at the polling station. Likewise, it replaces the traditional search method, which consisted in locating it according to the number of voting group, which appears in Peruvian Identity Card (ID), which often generated confusion in electors.

ONPE's staff and properly authorized voluntary youngsters will comply with orientation of electors at polling stations on the election day to prevent disturbance.

Election official tables will be put in alphabetical order for the voting of Peruvians living in Peru and overseas.

Voters can ratify information on their polling stations and election official tables at the political organization's website (www.onpe.gob.pe), by sending a text message with their numbers of ID from any mobile phone to 6673 or by calling to 417-0630, option 1.

They can also do it at Decentralized Offices of Electoral Processes (ODPE), ONPE's district offices and public places.

The service, which allows citizens to know their polling stations, election official tables and the order numbers, resumed this week, ONPE affirmed. Likewise, they can know if they were elected as polling supervisors by sending a free-of-charge text message with the number of ID to 6673 from any Movistar, Claro, Entel or Bitel mobile phone.

The political organization has re-launched Info Elections and Polling Station applications for mobile devices, which contribute to locating polling station and election official table, where they must cast the vote. The said applications will be able to be downloaded through Google Play.

More information

Polling supervisors, elected for the first round, will be the same for the run-off. Fine for not taking up polling supervisor's duty is S/197.50, which accounts for 5% of Peruvian Tax Units.

Lima, May 16th, 2016